"Breaking Through", The sun breaks through the fog and mist along the Damnation Creek Trail in The Redwood National and State Park, Del Norte National and State Forest.

Sometimes you run across a landscape scene that contains no foliage, but these are rare. Most nature scenes having no foliage contain some combination of water, sand or sky. And even then foliage can add to or change the scene, if it is visible in your visual composition. Most other landscape scenes contain some kind of foliage, such as trees, leaves, flowers, or even weeds. Foliage enhances most landscape scenes by adding color, depth and interest. My Forests and Plants Gallery is rather broad, but a worthy Gallery in of its self.
